About RESKILLING

RESKILLING is a Horizon Europe project (2025–2027) that addresses the transformation of the mobility sector brought by Connected, Cooperative, and Automated Mobility (CCAM). The project analyses the socio-economic and employment impacts of CCAM deployment across the entire value chain, and develops innovative training tools, business models, and strategies to support workforce adaptation. Guided by inclusivity, co-creation, and social innovation, RESKILLING aims to empower Europe's workforce and businesses to cope with the profound changes in transport while ensuring that opportunities for job creation and skills development are fully realised.

About the Event

The RESKILLING Annual Stakeholder Event brings together voices from industry, research, policy, training and international organisations to exchange ideas, share experience and help shape the future of skills and employment in mobility. Participants will receive a concise update on the project's progress, key results and ongoing research, providing a clear picture of where RESKILLING stands and how their own expertise can contribute.

Designed as a highly interactive event, the programme will combine presentations, live polling and open discussion to explore how jobs and skills are evolving across the mobility sector. Participants will be invited to identify emerging challenges, opportunities and priorities for training, reskilling and workforce adaptation across specific CCAM use cases, and to reflect on viable business models for deployment. Their input will feed directly into the project's work, helping ensure that RESKILLING remains grounded in the real needs, knowledge and priorities of the wider stakeholder community.
